

GDPR Compliance Support

The 25th of May 2018 has come and gone now, but you may find that you are still not compliant with the new General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR).

Basically, if you collect, store or handle personally identifiable information of European citizens, you need to ensure that you fully comply with its requirements. You have the full responsibility of protecting the data you hold.

The attention-grabbing element of GDPR is the potential for fines and recourse should you not comply.

GDPR requires a mandatory notification of a breach and you could face penalties of up to 4% of your global turnover or €20 million, whichever is greater.

Unfortunately, many businesses are still not fully GDPR compliant, with many likely to still have some compliance gaps that need to be worked through.

Our team will be able to support you and help you demonstrate accountability for how you store, maintain and protect the personal data you hold. We will help you:

- ✧ Develop data protection policies.
- ✧ Embed new business processes.
- ✧ Educate your team.
- ✧ Ensure you have the right security and encryption.
